Hobart candidates face the big questions on city's future

Article by Property Australia, accessed via propertycouncil.com.au, first published October 6th 2026

Hobart's mayoral hopefuls have gone head-to-head on the future of the city, with investment, housing, congestion, the CBD and council spending dominating a major candidate forum ahead of the City of Hobart election.

Candidates for Lord Mayor and Deputy Lord Mayor faced the city's business, property, construction, tourism and hospitality sectors at the Future of Hobart forum at the Crowne Plaza on Monday.

Hosted by the Property Council of Australia, Tasmanian Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Master Builders Tasmania, Tourism Industry Council Tasmania and Hospitality Tasmania, the forum put candidates on the clock to explain how they would tackle some of Hobart's biggest challenges.

Property Council Chief Executive Mike Zorbas moderated the event, with candidates given 60 seconds to make their pitch before facing questions developed by local business and industry leaders.

The future of Hobart's CBD emerged as a major theme during the event. The Collins Street bike lanes dominating discussion, and candidates and the crowd also focused heavily on access to businesses.

Car parking was another issue that divided the candidates. Issues such as attracting investment, council spending, and the cost and quality of services delivered to ratepayers, also appeared.

The discussion comes as independent research commissioned by the Property Council shows residents are increasingly concerned about the direction of Hobart, including Council's support for the CBD, management of congestion, rising parking costs and value for money from rates and charges.

With voters now preparing to choose Hobart's next Lord Mayor and Deputy Lord Mayor, the focus shifts from the campaign promises to which vision residents believe can best move the city forward.
